

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of abusing the trust that accompanies the broadcast license that it has been issued. In an attempt to influence the presidential election Sinclair has stretched the limits of what it calls "news reporting" to provide air time to a political group dedicated to manipulating the election process. The FCC should take a careful look at Sinclair's motives and actions.